

Puma

Duo Cell

Development: Engineering

Puma asked Essential to take the SpiderCell concept and develop it into an engineered, manufacturable component.

Working alongside the Puma technical team, Essential developed design parameters, a molding approach and structural and molding details, creating a final ProEngineer database for two variations on that design theme.

